THE GOULD DIVORCE

New York, June 16.—Howard Gould in the suit for divorce against Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, again presented evidence today tending to show that his wife's acts were not of a domestic nature such as warrants him in remaining at home. He presented evidence to show she used intoxicants to excess and humiliated him before his friends. On the other hand Mrs. Gould has asserted that every society woman may be maligned by her servants and the testimony of the servants of Castle Gould will be rebutted.

Mrs. Gould entered court dressed in black as usual. When Gould entered there was no sign of recognition. Interest centered upon Howard Gould when he stood to tell his side of the story of his unhappy married life today. Though his wife's face was covered with a veil, she watched him closely.

Previous to Gould's testimony, a florist employed on the estate told of Mrs. Gould calling him names not fit to repeat and acting in a manner unmistakably intoxicated. At another time he said Mrs. Gould called him to the office of the estate and kept repeating that she was Mrs. Howard Gould. She was, it appeared, under the influence of liquor. He said there were several employees in the office and she upbraided them all.

The Gould Case Yesterday.

Howard Gould was given permission to show that his wife, Katherine Clemmons Gould was addicted to the use of intoxicants, under the ruling of Justice Dowling, as well as that she humiliated him before his guests.

Morris Malloy, superintendent of Castle Gould, was the first witness on behalf of Gould. He told of a trip to Europe with Mrs. Gould and Elijah Sells, her cousin. When asked if he found Mrs. Gould under the influence of drink the first time he saw her at Castle Gould, the question was objected to on the ground that this was not sufficient grounds for abandonment, even if she was. Attorney Shearn, for Mrs. Gould, then cited several precedents and precipitated an argument.

After the attorneys had much argument Justice Dowling decided that Malloy might answer the questions put to him. This he did, telling of several occasions when, in his opinion, Mrs. Gould was intoxicated. He declared that at one time in the middle of July, 1906, Mrs. Gould reproved him excitedly for neglecting to readjust the house furnishings. There were further objections by Shearn but Malloy was permitted to answer.

"Did you get close enough to smell her breath?" asked attorney Shearn. "I did not get closer than I had to," said Malloy.

Under the ruling of the court, Malloy did not recite many incidents, the court holding them to be trivial. Several incidents were then told, when, according to Malloy, Mrs. Gould was intoxicated. The court held they were proper to show reason why Gould refused to remain at home. Malloy said he felt no animosity toward Mrs. Gould because he realized she was intoxicated.

Alfred Richards, employed as steward at Castle Gould in 1906, testified to seeing Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor several times. He said she once stayed in her room for two weeks and he supplied her with liquor morning, noon and night. In the course of the two weeks seven bottles of brandy were sent to Mrs. Gould's room according to the testimony of the witness.

THEIR BOND IS REDUCED

The hearing of H. A. Irwin and wife Lella Irwin, was finished before Judge Wm. H. Pope in district court at 9:30 last night and the defendants were ordered held for the investigation of the first grand jury of the new county of Curry and their bond was fixed at $1,000 apiece, which will be easily furnished according to a statement of the attorneys for the defense. The new bond comes as a big reduction, since the prisoners had been ordered held by the justice of the peace under a bond of $5,000.

The trial was a habeas corpus procedure, brought in the so-called Black Hand case from Clovis, by which Mrs. Irwin and husband hoped either to be discharged from the charge entirely, or to secure the reduction in bond, which was granted. Their attorneys were divided as to their feeling over the outcome of the trial. C. E. Sheppard, of Sulphur Springs, stated that he secured all he expected in the trial, namely, a reduction of the bond that put the case more nearly on its proper plane of importance. Fred McDonald, of Clovis, stated that he had hoped for a complete dismissal. R. E. Rowles, the third attorney for the defense, did not express himself on the result other than to say that he considered it a victory for the defense. These attorneys state that Mr. and Mrs. Irwin, through their relatives in Sulphur Springs, Texas, could easily have given the first bond set, but they did not consider it in keeping with the severity of the punishment in such cases where guilt is proven.

The hearing last night was attended by a good sized crowd, in spite of the warm weather. There were several women in the audience. Mrs. Irwin was on the stand much of the evening, and gave a cool and straightforward account of the whole transaction. She showed some emotion during the cross-questioning and later in the evening, when Judge Pope gave his decision, could no longer refrain from tears. She created no scene, however, and did not give herself up to sobbing until court was adjourned and nearly all the attendants had left the court room. She was almost carried by her husband to the Grand Central hotel, where they have been stopping, with an officer always present, during their stay in Roswell. Mrs. Irwin claims to have been in a state of nervous collapse at the time this trouble came on, and this morning when she and her husband left for Portales, to make bond, she was apparently completely broken in spirit. She was heard to say: "I don't care so much for this decision, for I know I am innocent, that we are bound to come clear finally; but the thought of the stigma this affair will put on my name is more than I can bear."

All the parties interested in the case who remained through the session last night left this morning for their homes in Portales and Clovis. It is a good case for Roswell to be rid of. The following is an exact copy of one of the letters that was introduced as evidence in the case, with mis-spelling and improper capitalization the same as in the original and shows the nature of the proposition:

"D. K. . . . J. S. Fitzshue
Use Your Annuance to give Irwin . . .
Wire Freedom at once. Will give You to June 15. Fail it means Death for Convicting. They are. Inposent. Do This You Will Never Be Annoyed Again fail to do so your days are Numbered."

"BLACK HAND."

It develops that Mrs. Irwin has been connected with courts before, but not in the place of defendant. She is none other than pretty Lella Flannery, formerly of Dennison, Texas, who was for some time Court Stenographer under Judge Townsend at Ardmore and later deputy clerk of Johnson county, Oklahoma. She is an accomplished young woman and is also a school teacher. She is 26 years old. Her husband, who is under arrest with her, is H. A. Irwin and they were married at Wichita Falls, Texas, October 9, last year. He is the son of W. I. Irwin, a wealthy and highly respected citizen of Sulphur Springs, Texas. No evidence has come out so far to connect Irwin with the case, but it is conceded by everyone that, in the nature of things generally, if Mrs. Irwin is guilty, he must be in the plot.
